

Fox the Fox - The Paragon

Yeah

In the past, fantasies reflected Decisions were based upon a doubt
Involved in daydream illusions
Lost reasons and finally myself

And little by little
The need to be wanted faded away

Entangled by strange vibrations
Escaped my responsibilities
Taken by the heartaches of many Punished by my curiosity

And little by little
The need to be wanted faded away

Down under the paragon glances
My beloved illuminate my life
Down under the paragon romances
Still waiting for the rhythm of the rhyme

Yeah

Isolated from every single detail
Every corner was good enough to hide
Even you were nothing but a shadow
Too vague to be my guide
And little by little
The need to be wanted faded away

Down under the paragon glances
My beloved illuminate my life
Down under the paragon romances
Still waiting for the rhythm of the rhyme

Judged by those who cannot see
Stones were cast upon my skin
Out of balance, I fell deep
Turned my virtue into sin
Mastered by a troubled heart
Emptiness embraced my skin
In the twilight, I reflect
Hold on to my silver string
In the meantime, I go on
To regain my paragon

Down under the paragon glances
Down under the paragon romances
Down under